The FARMERS CORNER

by RALPH H. TAYLOR
Executive Secretary Agricultural Council of California

California's battle to escape being known, the world over, as The Promised Land of the migrant laborer, is still far from won.

Wheezing relics of the nation's second-hand car lots—the drab "covered wagons" of the victims of drought and depression—still roll into California by the hundreds at every border station.

But California's attempt to stem the tide, although it has not yet brought the vigorous, constructive cooperation of the national government that is badly needed, at least has secured active and exceedingly helpful assistance in repeated instances from the Farm Placement Service of the Social Security Board.

In the most recent instance, the Farm Placement Service, through the aggressive action of W. V. Allen, its California supervisor, aided materially in forestalling a new rush of migrants from Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas, which had started as a result of nationally-published reports of the Madera County cotton strike.

The first tip that a new stampede to California was under way from a Madera county supervisor who was in west Texas at the time and observed caravans of cars moving westward. On inquiry, he learned that the travelers were headed for Madera county to take the place of cotton pickers then on strike. This news was relayed to Supervisor Allen of the Farm Placement Service who, in turn, telegraphed O. D. Hollenbeck, director of the service, in Washington, D. C., asking that immediate steps be taken to discourage further migration. Hollenbeck promptly communicated with Farm Placement supervisors in Oklahoma, Arkansas and Texas, asking that publicity be given to the fact that California had far more workers than jobs and that migrants, hoping for work in the cotton harvest, were doomed to disappointment.

Typical of the helpful cooperation that resulted from these appeals was the following bulletin, sent by the Oklahoma State Employment Service to all of its managers:

"We are in receipt of information from Mr. O. D. Hollenbeck of the Farm Placement Service that there seems to be an influx of people from Oklahoma, Texas and Arkansas into California, for the purpose of securing cotton picking jobs, as a result of recent press reports concerning a strike in progress in that state.

"Information from California is that there is a surplus of labor now in California, and it is requested to disseminate information to this effect, and persons desiring to go to California for this work be discouraged from doing so, as their chances of getting jobs would be at a minimum."

Texas newspapers carried announcements strongly emphasizing the fact that no cotton pickers are desired in California.

Arkansas officials used both the newspapers and the radio to warn their people not to go to California in the hope of getting work in the cotton fields.

And California, as a consequence of this splendid cooperation, probably avoided a new rush of thousands of penniless migrants who would have eventually become a burden on California taxpayers.

The federal government, if the present problem is to be solved before it brings ruin to California taxpayers, must go further, however, and take steps to assume the cost of supporting the hundreds of thousands of itinerants who have already migrated to this state. Or it must see that they are returned to their home states to be supported or placed in employment there.

And California's public officials should start doing their part in coping with the problem by putting an end to loose talk of bountiful relief and $60 pensions for everyone over 60.

The recent assertions of several administration officials that migrants do not come to California as a result of publicity concerning the Utopian pension schemes and easy-going relief standards—but rather, because this state has a sunny, balmy climate—would be laughable, if the problem were not so serious. California officials need to come down to earth thinking about the welfare of Californians.

The normal to January 1 is 13.99 inches.

The normal to February 1 is 21.41 inches.

A weekend storm brought 2.80 inches of rain to the county seat up to 8 o'clock Tuesday morning to raise the total of precipitation for the season to 11.42 inches, still two and one-half inches less than the anticipated normal as of January 1.

Although the two or three days before had been marked by flurries of rain, the storm set in in earnest Monday and continued throughout the day to leave a total of 1.87 inches of rain in the county seat.

Tuesday morning found the rains continuing and although the storm abated early in the afternoon, a new storm was forecast.

Although the storm was an answer to the hopes of farmers and miners, there was little consolation for lumberers and other conservationists or for winter sports fans, in the report that up to noon Tuesday the storm took the form of rain in the higher elevations, and what little snow had been accumulated earlier in the season was being rapidly washed away.

A check of several sources failed to reveal any change as a result of the rains which, in some sections of the county were accompanied by brisk winds.

Capital Mourns John L. Nagle

Death Of Prominent Business Leader Is Reported As Suicide

SACRAMENTO, (UP) — Funeral services were to be held here today for John L. Nagle, prominent northern California business leader, who took his own life yesterday.

He was found near death in a bathroom in his Sacramento home. Beside him was a .22 pistol.

Removed to Sutter Hospital, he soon died. He gave no specific reason for his act. It was believed, however, financial problems and strain resulting from overwork had caused him to take his life.

Nagle was a director of the Western Pacific Railroad, general manager of the California Fruit Exchange, and a member of the board of the State Chamber of Commerce. He also was a director of the defunct California National Bank and president of the board of the Senator Hotel, both in Sacramento.

Family members said with the advent of war in Europe he had been worried about trans-Atlantic shipments of California Fruit. The European markets prove a lucrative trade for the fruit exchange of which he was general manager.

It was added the problems of the California National Bank and the California Trust and Savings Bank, both closed in 1933, hung heavy upon his mind.

He is survived by Mrs. Nagle; a daughter, Kathleen; a step-daughter, Mrs. Center; a brother, Frank Nagle, Roseville, and a sister, Mrs. Teresa Kenny, West Roxbury, Mass.

$36,542.19 SRA ASSISTANCE IN COUNTY DURING YEAR

Report For Fiscal Period Ending June 30th Shows $10,087.91 Additional Expended For Expenses Of Local Administration

How the taxpayers might have borne extra burdens in El Dorado county if it had been solely responsible for offering the same type of unemployment relief and social service investigation now provided by the State Relief Administration is reported by Walter Chambers, SRA administrator.

Chambers said the county would have been obligated to foot a relief bill amounting to $56,630.10, which would have increased the county's present total expenditures by 21.3 per cent.

The figures on which his estimate is based cover the period from July 1, 1938, to June 30, 1939.

Chambers said the cost to the county would have been even greater if it had expended its own funds for the distribution of surplus commodities, the food stamp plan, the certification of applicants for jobs with the Works Project Administration, placement of persons on work projects and the special programs for single men in resident camps, free lunches for under-privileged school children, and other important activities. In addition, some counties are aided by the SRA in certifying boys and men to the Citizens Conservation Corps.

These are all activities now carried on by the SRA for the help of the needy unemployed.

The actual amount of relief extended by the state to relief clients in the county was $36,542.19, which was spent by the clients for such items as rent, food, medical care, clothing and other things of direct financial benefit to business and professional persons.

In addition to the money spent by the SRA for relief, a total of $10,087.91 was spent for operating the program through the SRA's county offices.

For the second time in a week California led the nation in violent deaths as the toll stood at 37 on the close of the New Year's holiday.

Traffic accidents — as was the case at Christmas time—again accounted for the bulk of the deaths. At least 20 were victims of crashes, although seven were suicides and others were homicides, train wrecks and drownings.

California went back to work today after a three-day New Year's celebration which reached new highs in the farewell to the old year and the welcome to the new.

The celebration was marked by 37 violent deaths, of which 20 were from Automobile accidents.

Highlights of the celebration were the New Year's eve parties, the tournament of roses and the Rose Bowl football game in Pasadena, and the Shrine East-West Football game and Pageant in San Francisco.

The tournment of roses parade drew an estimated 1,250,000 spectators.

The Rose Bowl football game, played before 90,000 in the Pasadena stadium, saw U. S. C. defeat Tennessee, 14-0.

The west defeated the east, 28-11, in the Shrine game which drew 50,000 spectators despite intermittent rains. Despite the rain and the muddy field, scores of fraternal, patriotic and school organizations participated in a colorful flag drill between the halves.

LABOR CLAIM SUSPECT GETS RELEASE ON HABEAS CORPUS

Deputy Sheriff Ralph Jones, who was at Los Angeles last week to return Victor Michelle to this county, arrived home on Friday empty handed.

Michelle, charged on nine counts with failure to meet wage claims in the county, defeated the officer's purpose to return him here by gaining release on a writ of habeas corpus on which a hearing will be held Friday of this week at Los Angeles.

The accused, charged before Justice of the Peace Tony Lemos, at Cool, had been released on bail of $1,800 and his continued failure to appear to answer the charge led Judge Lemos to issue a bench warrant for his arrest, which Jones carried with him to Los Angeles.

County officials indicated an officer from the county will attend the Los Angeles hearing Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Williams and family were here from Marysville to spend the new year holiday with relatives and friends.

LIONS ADVANCE DINNER PLANS

Attendance Contest To Reach Half-Way Mark At Tuesday Meeting

Lions will reach the half-way mark in their thirty-two week attendance contest at their meeting Tuesday, January 9th, and the week following the first half of the race will be celebrated with an evening stag dinner meeting of the club.

For the purpose of the contest, the club roster is divided in the middle alphabetically, the A to M have being known as the British Army, and M to Z half as the French Army, and according to the latest standings, it appears that the stag dinner will be at the expense of the French Army.

Roy Strum is chairman of the attendance contest and the entertainment for the January 16th evening meeting will be supplied by the entertainment committee for January, of which John Palmer is chairman.

President L. R. Armes presided at the regular Tuesday meeting of this week and called for a report from L. W. Loomis on the plans for a suggested get-acquainted dinner. There was some discussion following Loomis' report, which recommended that the affair be combined with the annual Chamber of Commerce membership dinner on January 15th. No conclusive action was taken.

Woodward Fox, welfare chairman, reported that the club's work during December under that heading included chiefly the assembling of

Thirty-Two Villages Reported Inundated; Populace In Tree Tops

ISTANBUL, Turkey, (UP) — Floods swept western Turkey today as new earthquakes added to destruction, suffering and death in both the west and the east.

Thirty two villages in the Geyve Valley, 100 miles southwest of Istanbul, were reported flooded and dispatches said many people had taken refuge in tree tops awaiting rescue. Six hundred persons were reported missing at Kemal Pasha, a town of 50,000 population. The village of Azbali disappeared, it was said, and even the highest trees were submerged. It was believed that all communication between Istanbul and Ankara, the capital, had been severed as the railroad runs through the Geyve Valley. Authorities of Brusa province advised the government that numerous bodies were floating in waters of the flood zone which now looked like a gigantic lake.

ALLIES NEAR RED BREAK

By JOE ALEX MORRIS
U. P. Foreign News Editor

Soviet Russia's reinforced Red army renewed its hammaring — so far in vain — at Finnish defense lines today but elsewhere in Europe diplomacy superseded fighting.

There were mounting indications of a possible break between the Western powers, including Italy and the Soviet Union, with a wide open question as to whether the final alignment would find Germany fighting beside Russia.

Those developments became of particularly great importance in connection with the allies long range program for lining up European nations against the Nazis so that the allied blockade would be strongly enforced and so that a powerful combination may be ready, if necessary, to oppose the spread of Bolshevism or a Nazi-Bolshevist combination if all Europe is pulled into the conflict.

Authorized sources in Berlin denied a new flurry of reports published in paris, most of which appeared to be based largely on wishful thinking of the French or to be a part of the French campaign to maintain public support for the war. One of these was a report that Marshall Hermann Goering, the No. 2 Nazi, was in disfavor with Adolf Hitler and that he had been wounded in the leg by "snipers" who ambushed him.

The German denial of that report was definite but worded in a strange manner . It said that Goering was spending most of his time at his estate but came to Berlin for conferences "every few days" — which might seem unusual in view of the many important jobs held by the marshal.

C. OF C. VOTE UNDER WAY

Ballots Must Be Returned By January 8; Annual Dinner On January 15

The annual election of the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce is currently under way and the attention of members is directed to the request that ballots, which are being filed by mail, be returned by January 8th.

Secretary Wallace M. Ripley said Monday morning that a number of ballots have all ready been returned and urged that members who have not cast their ballots do so promptly.

On January 8th, the ballots will be tabulated by the special committee on the election, which includes L. J. Anderson, C. E. Barker and Roger Douvres, and the result of the election announced.

Eight directors are to be chosen this year to fill the places of as many members of the board whose two-year terms expire this year. Seven hold-over directors, whose terms expire next year, bring the total board membership to fifteen.

Upon the announcement of the result of the current vote, the secretary said, the president of the Chamber of Commerce will call a meeting of the directors and new officers for the year will be elected and appointed, to take office at the annual membership dinner.

This will be held Monday evening, January 15th, at Hotel Raffles at seven o'clock.

Secretary Ripley said that in addition to being a meeting of the membership, it is to be made a general-get-acquainted affair, and all business people of the county, whether they are members of not, will be welcome to attend the meeting.

Court Upholds Labor Board

Challenges To NLRB Powers Over-Ruled; Has "Sole Discretion"

WASHINGTON, (UP) — The Supreme Court today confirmed the exercise of broad powers by the National Labor Relations Board, holding that federal courts have no authority to review a board election order or a board certification of a union as collective bargaining agent.

The court upheld the position taken by the labor board in a series of challenges to its powers. It did so in these actions:

Upheld the board in designating a CIO union as a coastwise bargaining unit with employers for some 13,000 Pacific Coast waterfront workers.

Upheld the right of the board to issue orders for collective bargaining elections without revision or interference by the federal courts.

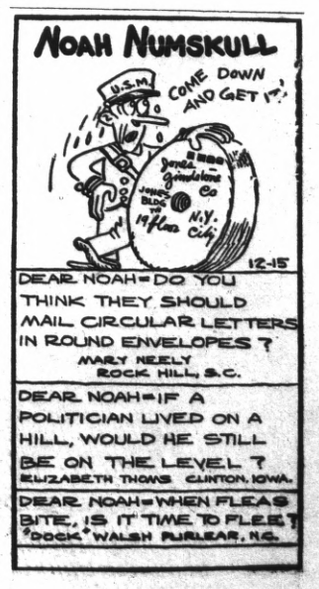

The supreme court held that congress, through the National Labor Relations Act, has vested in the board itself sole discretion in handling these matters.

THE Book Mark

By JANE VOILES

To mark the transition of San Francisco from a raw boom town to a city, William Chapman Ralston built the old Palace Hotel. The spirit of that transitional period pervades "Bonanza Inn" the story of the Palace from 1873 when the excavation of its site began, to 1906 when it was consumed in the fire. The book is written by two capable writers: Oscar Lewis and Carroll Hall. If you remember the old Palace it lives again for you in this book; if it was before your time, the authors make that gay, plump era of San Francisco history alive for you, for the genius of a place as well as the history of a time come to life in "Bonanza Inn."

Words such as "economy" and "retrenchment" had no place in the Ralston scheme when he planned the Palace. Streams of easy money were pouring into the city from the pockets of the new Comstock millionaires. The Palace with its 800 rooms, its Grand Court that became famous all over the world, its Haviland China, Irish linen, acres of carpets from Sloanes, was the perfect symbol of the time.

But the chief ornaments of the hotel were the guests who frequented it. Mr. Lewis and Mr. Hall call up one celebrity after another who made the Palace their headquarters. Dom Pedro II, Emperor of Brazil, came to the hotel in April, 1876, when it was still the talk of the town. San Francisco hospitality and the Palace soon came to mean one and the same thing. Heroes of the Civil War were greeted with the fanfare and the flourish that were always characteristic of the city. Phil Sheridan, William T. Sherman, John Fremont, came to the Palace but the gala occasion was the visit of General Ulysses Grant who was honored in the most lavish way.

Culture in all its different brands was coming to the city eager to improve itself, and those who brought it found a suitable haven at the Palace. Oscar Wilde came, wearing his velvet waistcoat, yellow gloves and the somewhat wilted boutonniere consisting of heliotrope, a tuberose and a daisy. "Josh Billings" came to make the city laugh. James Whitcomb Riley was a Palace guest; so was Will Carleton, famous for his "Over the Hill to the Poor House," and Rose Hartwick Thorpe, equally famous for her "Curfew Must Not Ring Tonight."

The authors interrupt their account of celebrities to tell the story of William Sharon and Sarah Aletha Hill. The story is almost by way of going into the shadow land of legend but here is the authentic record. It is, of course, a part of Palace history as Sharon succeeded Ralston to the control of the Palace and of Ralston's princely estate at Belmont. What William Sharon lacked in magnetism, he made up in shrewdness. But Sharon had one failing, he liked women too well. In his sixties, he met the attractive Sarah Aletha Hill. Two years later she entered suit to force Sharon to acknowledge her as his legal wife, claiming a secret marriage. This case with all of its sensational testimony dragged in the San Francisco law courts. Mammy Pleasant, "that most curious character of San Francisco's Bonanza Age," entered into the case, also a negro sorceress to whom Sarah Hill went in search of a love draught. (And if you are interested in love draughts—the authors quote a testimony which gives a recipe). In the meanwhile Sharon died. In his will there was no mention made of Sarah Hill. Then followed Sarah's marriage to David Terry—the man who killed Senator Broderick in a duel. Terry was a man of solid attainments but Sarah Hill had the reputation of being a notorious woman. In that day "notorious" had a sinister connotation. The authors tell the entire dramatic story of Sarah Aletha Hill up to the time of her death in Stockton in 1937.

Little Hitchcock Coit's story strikes a more cheerful note. She was "the girl who chased the fire engines" and who did all kinds of unusual things which the proper girls of the '90s did not do, such as playing poker or going to a cock fight in male attire. But we all love her memory today when we look at Coit Tower—her bequest to her beloved city.

Prima donnas and actresses had a kind of mysterious charm that the movie stars of today lack. Adelina Patti came to the Palace on her "farewell" tours. The luscious Lily Langtry, the seductive Anna Held and that "unpredictable trouper" Trixie Friganza all stopped at the Palace. Emma Nevada and Sybil Sanderson (born in Sacramento) were other Palace guests. Caruso, whose temperament and good fellowship were good for any number of stories, always stayed at the Palace.

It is difficult to say just what is best in the book. It is so full of arresting pictures of the past but we like the last chapter, the grand finale where Mr. Lewis and Mrs. Hall give a magnificent picture of that catastrophe of 1906—the earth quake and fire that destroyed the Palace.

You will like "Bonanza Inn." Today when we live in a time of grim forebodings and gloomy noddings, it is good to go back if only in pleasant recollection to those days of inexhaustible opulence that all Californians like to claim as their heritage.

MEN LIKE BEANS

Says Dorothy Greig

PROBABLY every woman at some time or other has thought out loud, "Now what can we have that's simple and quick?" And had that ever helpful male suggest, "How about beans?"

k Chops baked on top of pork and beans are appetizing on a cold night.

Men, as we all know, like pork beans. They like them served t as they come from the can and ey like them with other things, too. Pork and beans, brown and flavorsome are superbly satisfying to hungry appetites.

One of our favorite pork and bean dishes is this baked pork chop casserole. Along with it are served sliced tomatoes, celery hearts and fresh crusty rolls. Followed by a simple dessert it makes a good meal indeed:

Hungry Man's Casserole

5 - 6 pork chops
2 cans pork and beans (16-oz. size)
Salt and pepper

Pan Sauce

1 tablespoon of fat and drippings in the pan
3-4 tablespoons of ketchup
2 tablespoons of water

Brown the pork chops on both sides in a skillet. Sprinkle with salt and pepper.

Put two cans of pork and beans in a casserole dish, arrange the browned pork chops on top of the beans. Then pour all except one tablespoon of fat from pork chops out of skillet. Add ketchup and water and heat with fat to boiling point. Pour the pan sauce over the pork chops and bake in a moderate (375° F.) oven for 50-60 minutes.

Bright Bites are these Canapés and Appetizers

A tray of Canapés and Appetizers starts a guest meal off with a flourish.

By Dorothy Greig

SHARP, bright flavor is the test of a good canapé or appetizer. Its mission in life is to wake up appetite. So we make our appetizer a small bite but a keen one. We serve it as an accompaniment to tomato juice or other refreshers. Then, before the effect has had time to wear off, we gently herd our guests to the dining table, primed to anticipation for the good food that is to follow.

As first aids to the clever hostess we suggest these bright bites:

Toasted Tomato Ham Canapé

1 cup boiled ham, ground
½ cup cheese, ground or grated
½ teaspoon grated horse-radish
½ teaspoon prepared mustard
½ cup condensed tomato soup
6 slices bread, toasted

Mix the ground ham, cheese, horse-radish, mustard and tomato soup together. Toast the bread, trim off crusts and cut each slice into 3 or 4 strips. Spread with the mixture, then toast under broiler until delicately browned.

Smoky Celery Canapés

1 package (3 oz.) cream cheese
¼ cup condensed celery soup
1 cup salami, ground

Cream the cheese and add the celery soup. Then add the ground salami and mix well. Spread mixture on toast or crackers and heat under the broiler until golden brown.

Stuffed Celery

½ cup Roquefort cream spread
2 tablespoons condensed tomato soup

Cream the cheese with the tomato soup. Use the crisp, tender white stalks of celery. Wash well and drain. Then fill the grooves with the cheese-tomato filling. Makes about 15 stalks stuffed celery 3 inch lengths.

SOW ANNUAL FLOWERS NOW AND THEY MAY BLOOM IN THE SPRING; HARDIER TYPES SEEM TO RESENT BEING TRANSPLANTED

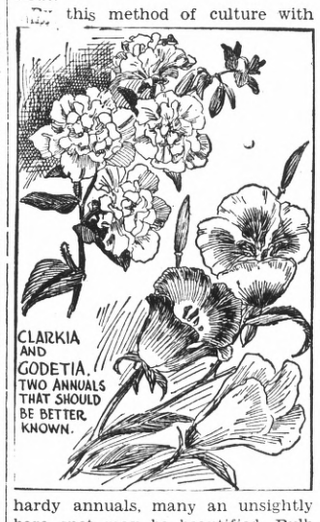

Hardy annuals will stand average winter and spring frosts. Where the ground does not freeze, they may be sown broadcast in the open where they are intended to bloom. In districts where the ground does freeze they are best sown after danger of freezing in spring.

All along the Pacific Coast, hardy annuals are best sown in fall between rains, some broadcast where they are intended to bloom, others in boxes for transplanting.

The hardier sorts resent being transplanted and handled. They include the Clarkia, Godetia, California Poppy (Eschscholtzia), Lupines, Mallows, Mignonette, Single and Double Annual Poppies, Arctotis and Dimorphtheca, Gypsophila (Baby Breath, Candyturt, Gilia, Larkspur, Calendula (Cape or English Marigold), Scabiosa (Pichushion), Virginian Stocks, Viscaria. Sweet Peas also come under the above group, although where slugs, snails and sow bugs are not controlled with the new Metaldehyde Poison Baits, the seed is sown in pots or plant bands and transplanted out-of-doors later.

It is recommended that the contents of a packet of seed be mixed with from one quart to one gallon of either finely screened garden loam , or leaf mold, before attempting to sow broadcast. This simple method insures sufficient spacing of the plantlets so that they make a normal development and also aids in covering them. A slight raking-in or ramping over the newly sown area will insure contact of the seeds with the soil and hide it from the birds.

By this method of culture with hardy annuals, many an unsightly bare spot may be beautified. Bulb beds may be supplied with an interesting carpet and mixtures of native flowers may be sown in vacant lots and week-end cabins and lodges.

There are mixtures of hardy annuals for garden effect, also some composed of varieties well adapted for cutting during the spring and summer months.

Where winter rains are sporadic, interspersed with long spells of dry weather, the plantings of hardy annuals will respond to artificial watering.

TODAY'S PROFILE

BY UNITED PRESS

Sebastian S. Kresge, the one-time Bald Mount, Pa., farm boy who created a far-flung 5-and-10-cent store chain throughout the United States and Canada, has given generosly of his wealth but lost through divorce two wives who complained of his thrift and never could improve his golf because he spent too much time looking for lost balls.

It was Kresge's Dutch ancestry that gave him a respect for thrift, religion and conventional living. In addition to the Kresge foundation, established with a fund of $23,000,000, the dime store owner has contributed liberally to the Anti-Saloon League of America, other temperance organizations, to churches, colleges, rescue homes and the Young Men's Christian Association.

"I get a greater thrill out of the idea of serving others than out of anything else on earth," he once said, but he was careful never to donate to a church congregation whose minister used tobacco.

Kresge, who does not smoke, considers use of tobacco a "wasteful habit."

Kresge was born on a farm near Bald Mount on July 31, 1867, and when he was still young began to rise at 4:30 a. m. each day to help his father. Later, with savings, partly accumulated from an apiary, he attended Fairview Academy at Broadheadsville, Pa., and a Poughkeepsie, N. Y., business college.

He worked successively as school teacher at $22 a month, an insurance agent, a home furnishing salesman, a department store bookkeeper, and a tin plate salesman before starting at 30 a 5-and-10-cent store in Memphis, Tenn., in 1899.

Two years later he dissolved his store partnership with J. T. McCrory and went north to Detroit, where he founded his present corporation with a single store. Issuance of stock permitted expansion until the Kressge system extended through more than 100 cities in the United States and Canada, rivaling the F. W. Woolworth company enterprise founded 22 years before Mr. Kresge first entered the 5-and-10-cent business.

WILLIAM G. BAYNE, NATIVE OF COLOMA, STRICKEN; RITES HELD MONDAY

The last rites for William G. Bayne, 84, a native of Coloma and a ifelong resident there, were held on Monday morning from St. Patrick's church. Interment was at the Catholic cemetery at Coloma.

Mr. Bayne passed away late Friday last at Placerville Sanitorium where he had been a patient for the previous month.

During his active life he had engaged in the livestock business. Mr. Bayne is survived by a sister, Mrs. Matilda Conroy, in addition to others more distantly related.

MINES, MANUFACTURING AND BUSINESS CENSUS IS INITIATED

WASHINGTON, (U.P.) —More than 12,000 enumerators inaugurated the 1940 decennial census today by commencing one of the most extensive fact-finding surveys of business and industry ever made by the federal government.

Four of seven censuses were begun this morning. They include business houses, manufacturing plants, drainage and irrigation units, and mines and quarries. The other three, covering population, housing and agriculture, will begin April 1.

NAZIS SPEED BUILDING OF "POCKET SUB" FLOTILLA

PARIS, (U.P.)—Official sources reported today that Germany had begun construction of a new fleet of 150-ton U-boats to aid in Adolf Hitler's counter-blockade against the Allies. The "vest pocket" submarines will require crews of only 20 officers and men as compared with the crews of 60 required for the 750-ton U-boats.

The small submarines would have a four or five days cruising range instead of 30 days but could be built about 10 times as fast, it was asserted.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Maul were hosts New Years eve for a group of nineteen invited friends, who watched the old year out and the new year in as one of the concluding features of a pleasant evening at cards.

SLUM STORY HAS HEART THRILLS, SUSPENSE ON EMPIRE BILL

Telling the dramatic story of grim-faced boys who challenge society for a chance in life, Universal's production of "Code of the Streets" open a two-day showing on Tuesday at the Empire Theatre.

In addition to the rough and ready band of juvenile stars, the "Little Tough Guys, the swiftly paced story features Harry Carey, Frankie Thomas, James McCallion, Leon Ames, Juanita Quigley and Dorothy Arnold.

The screen play by Arthur T. Horman and Gordon Kahn provides a graphic illustration of the effect that big city slum environment can have upon untrained youth. Harry Carey, who graduated from two-gun films to character roles on the screen, is seen as the police officer who arrests a boy then fights to save him from the electric chair.

Frankie Thomas, playing a boy detective in the film, was last seen with the Little Tough Guys "In Society." McCallion is a youthful and talented Broadway stage star making his bid for screen fame.

Already familiar to theatre patrons, of course, are the Little Tough Guys, Harris Berger, David Gorcey, Hally Chester, Charles Duncan and William Benedict. The picture was directed by Harold Young and produced by Burt Kelly. Elwood Bredell did the photography.

MISSISSIPPI VALLEY FLOOD CONTROL SUCCESSFUL

WASHINGTON, (UP) — Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring told President Roosevelt today that the federal flood control program has kept the Mississippi Valley free from flood damage for 12 years.

In his report on civil activities of the army engineers for the 1939 fiscal year ended last June 30th, Woodring said that congress has appropriated a total of $390,153,424 of the $637,000,000 authorized for the work since it began in 1926.

"The work accomplished on the adopted project for the Alluvial Valley of the Mississippi river has demonstrated its effectiveness by affording unbroken protection for a period of 12 years to date," he wrote. "Never before has the Alluvial Valley enjoyed so long a period without destructive overflow occurring somewhere along the lower river."

SACRAMENTO HUNTERS BAG THREE BEARS EAST OF CITY

SACRAMENTO — Three Sacramento district hunters came home Sunday with a story about the three bears — but they had three bear hides to vouch for the story.

The hunters — Arthur Frizer, Franklin dairyman; C. C. Masters and Arthur Cornelison, both of 24th street road — bagged their 1700 pounds of bear at Pollock Pines, 14 miles above Placerville,

They credited the bag to Masters' two hounds, who treed a 750-pound brown bear and a 500-pound black bear Friday, then cornered a 450-pound brown bear Saturday. They ran another bear for two and a half hours Sunday, but it got away.

The thrill of the trip came when the bulky black bear refused to stay treed and started down after Masters just before he fired his fatal shot.

The kills were made at an elevation of about 4500.

PLANE FACTORIES SERVE AIR NEEDS OF WAR AND PEACE

SANTA MONICA, (UP)—The warplane boom has not crowded out the production of peace-time craft, the Douglas Aircraft Company has indicated.

Breaking all records, Douglas has received orders since June for 82 new airliners costing approximately $10,000,000. Most are 21-passenger ships. During the first six months of 1939 Douglas delivered 37 of these ships. They are coming off the assembly lines side by side with fast bombing planes for the Allies in Europe.

Canada, Holland, and the United States are represented in the orders, President Donald Douglas declared, adding that "I consider this commercial transport business the most significant and hopeful development in the industry."

4 CHANGES FAVORED IN FOOTBALL RULES NEXT SESSION

LOS ANGELES, (UP)—Four football rule changes were to be proposed to the National Football Rules Committee in its Palm Springs, meeting today.

The recommendations were made at the first session of the American Football Coaches Association when 150 college and university coaches filled out questionnaires which listed 17 different proposals. The following four were approved by the rules committee:

1. To widen the distance between the uprights and lower the crossbar of the goal posts. (The committee refused to sanction moving the goal posts from the end zone stripe back to the goal line.)

2. Adopt smaller and softer cleats for football shoes.

3. Provide physical examination for referees.

4. Reduce the penalty for a forward pass touching an ineligible player behind the line of scrimmage.

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—James Roosevelt denied today that he is going to help his father in a re-election campaign next summer.

They are charged with 23 counts of conspiracy, bribery and bribe solicitation.

San Diego Slayer Gets Reprieve To April 4

SACRAMENTO (UP)—Gov. Culbert Olson has granted a 90-day reprieve to Jessie James Cordova, who was sentenced to be executed Jan. 5 for slaying his minor son in San Diego on October 9, 1938.

Olson said the reprieve was granted at the request of the advisory pardon board, which desired additional time to consider Cordova's plea for a commutation of sentence from death to life imprisonment.

The execution was moved up from Jan. 5 to April 4. He was convicted of murder last Jan. 16 in San Diego.

"We cannot do ALL the dry cleaning in the city--so we prefer to do only the BEST"
Frankly, we are not out to do all the dry-cleaning business in town. To do that, we should have to cut prices below the point at which good work can be done — and this we will never do. What we want to do is only that business which can be done the right way fo people who appreciate that good cleaning is the only truly economical kind.
